This hotel will be Hyatt's first beach resort in Japan. It is located in Okinawa's most sought-after resort destination, Onnason, on the west coast, approximately 60 minutes from Naha Airport by car. The plan includes the construction of a large hotel with around 340 rooms in total covering all of Seragaki Island and on the side of Okinawa's main island, surrounded by abundant nature. The hotel will have a variety of restaurants/bars, spas, swimming pools, fitness centers, banquet rooms, chapel and a full range of secondary facilities.

Together with the construction of the hotel, the project for the development of the sea area is underway in cooperation with Onnason, including the redevelopment of village roads that will connect to Seragaki Island and the beaches. New added value in the area will be created through town development in cooperation with the local community. In addition to domestic tourists, whose numbers are rising steadily, inbound guests who are expected to increase, will be taken into consideration in the development of the facilities.
